

Instructions for the Journal of Space Mission Architecture Authors

The Journal of Space Mission Architecture is published by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory's Center for Space Mission Architecture and Design. The Journal's goal is to provide a medium for the presentation of space mission architecture concepts, processes and tools. Authors are invited to submit articles on all areas of space mission architecture, such as: case studies of the development of missions including new or unusual architectural challenges, non-NASA mission architectures, the mission architecture process and tools, historical or biographical notes, and space program architecture

• Format:

Electronic submittal as an e-mail attachment is preferred. The following word-processor formats are acceptable: Word for Windows, Microsoft Word, Word for Macintosh, or just Only Text, RTF format. If electronic submission is not possible, a hardcopy manuscript, double-spaced, will be acceptable.

• Notes:

If not avoided altogether, notes should be kept to a minimum and always recorded as endnotes (not as footnotes).

• Figures:

Figures should be numbered consecutively and labeled "Figure" in the text. In electronic submissions, figures should be integrated with the text. Hardcopy submissions should include good quality copies of figures, suitable for scanning.

• Referencing:

The citation in the text should be in the form of author's surname and year of publication, e.g., (Ayer, 1996). The list of references at the end of the paper should be as short as possible, include no more than all the references cited in the text, and follow this style:

For journal articles:

LAESER, R.P, W. I. MCLAUGHLIN, & D. M. WOLFF (1986). "Engineering Voyager 2's Encounter with Uranus", Scientific American, Vol. 255, No. 5, 36-45

For a book:

ROY, W. E. (1978) Orbital Motion. John Wiley & Sons, New York, p.129

• Abstract:

An abstract should be provided, preferably no longer than 150 words.

• Keywords:

Please provide a minimum of 3 and a maximum of 5 keywords related to the subject of the article.

• Biography:

A short biography of the author(s) and a snapshot may be included if desired.

• Submittal:

Electronic submissions should be addressed to: donna.m.wolff@jpl.nasa.gov

Hardcopy submissions should be addressed to:
